BRUSSELS NEIGHBORHOOD 'SAINT-GERY' UNDERGOES REBIRTH

Saint-Gery, an area in the ancient heart of Brussels, has recently undergone a major renovation. Centerpiece of the area is Les Halles, an 1881 neo-Flemish market-place, whose beautiful wrought-iron and glass roof sheds light onto the 32 stalls and boutiques that are the main attraction of the newly renovated meat market which closed as recently as 1977.

The goods on sale; fashionable clothes, crafts, chocolates and artisanal objects are a far cry from the previous cuts of the butchers' trade. A bar runs the length of the building on the mezzanine floor, while in the cellars sprawls a restaurant that adds a Bruegelian ambience. Evening attracts musicians, dancers and jugglers to the market. The architect, Jacques Zatjman admits that London's Covent Garden and Paris' Les Halles both influenced his project to create a neighborhood that will draw the public, not only to shop, but meet friends, dine, and linger over drinks.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM BELGIUM

FINE ARTS MUSEUM IN GHENT TO MOUNT FLEMISH EXPRESSIONISM EXHIBITION IN SPRING 1990

The so-called "Flemish Expressionism" which dominated the art scene in Belgium from 1910 to 1930 is misleading since it was really a Flemish response to the very strong modern art movement in Europe stemming from Cubism and German Expressionism.

The three most important Belgian artists working in this area were Constant Permeke, Frits van den Berghe and Gust de Smet. They also influenced other artists such as Gustave van de Woestijne, Floris Jaspers and Albert Servaes.

An exhibition devoted to this vital episode in Belgian art will be set in a European context by showing the works of the Flemings along with their European contemporaries and immediate forerunners. Thus, along with Belgian artists, the exhibition will include works by Van Dongen, Chagall, Kandinsky, Metzinger, Servranckx, Gromaire, Kirchner, Ernst, Dufy, etc.

The exhibition is expected to run through March, April and May 1990 at the Fine Arts Museum in Ghent.

NEW GHENT MUSEUM TO FEATURE VAN EYCK WORKS "IN LARGER THAN LIFE" COLOR BLOW-UPS

A new museum, located in the Lakenhalle, a room of the Belfry of Ghent, will show large color photographs, framed as paintings, of the original masterpieces by Jan and Hubert van Eyck. Their twelve paintings are scattered in museums throughout the world; and their fragility and value mitigates against their ever being shown collectively.

Therefore, this new, framed, photographic exhibit of these works permits the visitor to encompass the magnitude of the van Eyck oeuvres in one place. The cynosure of the collection will undoubtedly be the "Adoration of the Mystic Lamb". The original painting, now safely ensconced behind glass, can be visited in the nearby Cathedral of St. Bavo where it has awed art lovers since its completion in 1432.

The exhibition will open May 31, 1990 and extend for an indefinite period. It will be open to the public daily (including Sundays and Holidays) from 10:00 AM to 6:00 PM. A guided tour costs 100FB.

A UNIQUE ARCHEOLOGICAL DISCOVERY IN TOURNAI, BELGIUM

A sarcophagus of exceptional beauty was recently discovered near a Roman necropolis in Tournai. Dating from the 4th century A.D., its lateral carvings are unusually adorned which leads experts to believe that it belonged to an important personage. The sarcophagus is fragile though, and since one must go as far as Trier, Germany to encounter a piece of such beauty, archeologists will not attempt to open it which might damage the exquisite lateral designs. It is now the centerpiece of the famous roman collection of the ARCHEOLOGICAL MUSEUM of Tournai. Further excavations are under way in the region, and a full exhibition of all new discoveries will be presented in Tournai in the Spring of 1990.

VEURNE'S PROCESSION OF THE PENITENTS HELD JULY 30th, 1989

Originally performed in 1644 as a ritual to protect the people of Veurne against the Plague, the procession of the black hooded penitents has become an annual tradition. Introduced in Flanders during the Spanish occupation, the procession, which features many colorful "tableaux vivants", has preserved all of its 17th c. grandeur and intensity.

Its only possible rival in Europe is the Semana Sancta procession of Seville. The procession begins at 3:30 pm July 30th. For more information, please contact Veurne's Tourist Office, Grote Markt 29, 8480 Veurne. Phone: (058)31.21.54.
